Dear Howard,

You're Just a beginner? Of this Reader it Correctly you have 55 of the 100 Varieties + Sub Varieties. This is hardly the beginner Category. I also note that you have a 1795 C6. Did you acquire it from a known Half Cent Collector? or did you Chronopick it? I am trying to keep a census of B-6, 7+8 Varieties so any info on this Coin would be appreciated. I currently have records of 16 specimens.

Your 1804 #9 with the Cud as a 45 would rank as one of the better known specimen with the Cud as Most of these are in less than Fine Condition.

Bill Smith has turned over the Enclosed sheet on Half Cents With My latest rarity revision as usual some are down and No New Varieties discovered.

It was good to hear from you and if You turn up More in B-6 or Higher or Unusually High Condition specimens of the other Please Write.

Sincerely

Roger

1895 a-b

6a = 5.38 gm × 15.43 = 83 grain

6b = 6.53 gm × 15.43 = 100.76 grains with loss of metal - close to 104 ?

I don't have a micrometer
And have had Trouble getting one - if Thickness is important
To you I will send measurements later

It was exciting when I thought I might be #6 or 7 but the idea of being the #7 and Prob. lowest grade doesn't fuss me on.

Dear Roger –

The Story on the Ha3 6B 1795 —

Once long ago I Collected a little of Everything not wisely and not well I ordered from Bowers and Ruddy Galleries Rare Coin Review #24 Autumn 1975 Page. 13 2nd Col 1st Entry.

"1795 Plain Edge, no pole variety, Fair, details sharp but date faintly discernible $1900.— "

I got it looked at it Tucked it away in a Type book, Thought no more of it until 6/78 When in London I Bought 4 Coins - The entire stock of Early American Copper from Wm Whelan LTD 8-9 Crown Passage
Pall Mall, ST. James's
London, SW1Y 6PP

Dealer in coin Bullion, + Jewellery

(1) 1795 ½ ¢ 6a VF 30 c small Rim ding (see grading regarded VF15+) £ 65 Marked / Paid 40 £
(2) Connecticut Copper 1787 AUCTORI good marked 10 £ paid 5 £
(3) 1800 S-195 AG 3 £ 5
(4) 1839 N 13 Booby Head graded 50+ - Rechecked 45 EF marked 35 £ pd 25 £

a poundwas worth about $2 at the time !

The shipping trip was exciting - [illegible] a "block" in [illegible] not all [illegible] [illegible] saying good.

When I got around to comparing the 2 1795 #L the old coin was about 2/3 again as thick as the one I bought in London - and it seemed a little wider.

At 1st I thought that since the ½a was struck over a 'A L Cent [(S1 1794 shows ship rigging and the obv ONE CENT), that the letters on the ½s were from a TAL - however, not so, ' 'STATES OF' on Rev. and 179_ can be seen on obv, rolled out and larger than one the ½ cent size. Obviously a large cent prob a '75 maybe a '74.

The weights I will try to determine before I send this - also measurements - it (the ½) doesn't seem all that thick and I [illegible] just one a thin ½a - on [illegible].

The plain edge adds no information. Note the central mark is a punch (or [illegible]?) which shows through to the Rev. The edge is a split of the flan maybe it [illegible] as if the dentation is [illegible] seen partially in the base - the [illegible] defect may be in the flan since there is no other deep corrosion. - Consider in the weight

A real ugly coin - Between a 2 and a 3 but a lot of detail for a 2 - so call 3

The under date clear except for the last figure the 1795 is seen when the light strikes it right and is smaller - I have burnished it - too much - making the date show -

Keep or throw all of the planchets away when you are through with them they are not worth mailing back and forth.

My 1804 "4" [illegible] bought from Liberty Americana as an EF45 - a gray-light tan slightly granular coin - one hesitates to call it porous but of course it's either sl. porous or had a bath in Effervescent Denture Cleanser - A great looking coin but still maybe a VF 35 at best - I had a momentary thrill thinking I had one of the better 1804 C9 until Common Sense took hold -

I need a good up to date CC list.

Asked John Wright where all the 60-50-55 coins came from that one sees in P.W. lists, CC-, etc.

"Simple" he says - "Same place as your 20 30 40 coins in your 1/2 cent list. I have your list and I've seen some of your pressings you have a great imagination."

I'm trying to be better. Please keep Call my hand everytime you don't agree you won't hurt my feelings. Take this ba bought as VF 30 - regarded as F 15 by me but John Wright would call it a Good 4 because you can't see but one Eye.

Thanks for the [illegible] [illegible] will [illegible] better than what I was using -

I have no dealer in this little [illegible] place - I [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] in shows - buy through [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] World - [illegible] some

Dear Howard.

That 1795 #6b is a major discovery as it is another clue in the continuing quest for facts on the emission sequence of Half Cents. I would like to see the coin!! Can you ship it to me? I'll be more than willing to pay the cost. Send it registered or insured for whatever value you want. I will return it to you the same way within 48 hours of receipt.

From what I've seen in the pressing I believe the undertype to be a 1796 large cent. I base this on what appears to be the bust line which seems to be a draped bust rather than the Liberty Cap style also the shape of the 179 seems to match the 1796 style. I really would like to verify this as it would tie down a number of things.

On Page VIII of my book (last ¶ first column) I noted that the large (115 grain aprox) planchets are known on varieties 5+C but that I did not know the source of them. Walter Breen in earlier writings had stated that cut down but not rolled out misstruck cents were the source. Walter never indicated his source for his ex-cathedra statement and as you may or may not know he did cologthy he could to stop me from Putting out My book. Thus it did not include any of his statements unless it could be sure they were correct.

On Page 17 of My book I ~~Published~~ Wrote what I found out at the National Archives, but I had at that time Never seen a #5b or 6b on which An undertype could be seen. Since then (1971) I have seen 2 examples of #5b with a cent undertype showing. One is in My Collection. a local coin dealer gave it to me as the date could Not be read. (To had he didn't read My description of obverse 3 on Page 15 of My book) This specimen has on the reverse the large cent undertype showing which happens to be brockage of a large cent reverse. The other specimen I know of has reverse letters of a large cent on the Half cent obverse and No undertype on the Half cent reverse. Yours is the First #6b to show up With An undertype! Thus you can see why I would like to see it in the Paper.

The 1804 #9 With the RTY break is one of the better specimens. Of the Variety the broken die is more common than the Un broken one- Overall but the reverse is true of higher Condition specimens of the Variety. There are about 10 of the Unbroken die known in Condition 50 to 70. ~~Next~~ There is one known broken die in Condition 70 (a beautiful Coin, No 1 in My Collection) the Next 6 or 7 of the broken die Scale 40 to 45 When we get below 40 to 20 there are about 10 specimens and below 20 there are just to many to be Counted.

Your Comments on Coin grading are of interest and it a subject that Never seems to end. If still leave grading up to individual as I Noted in My book. I don't think the ANA standards are of Much help except that the Shoppie Coin dealer will be hard Pressed to sell V.G. Coin for VF Now.

I do have some duplicate Half Cent but dont deal in them. I have Consigned a lot of about 50 to the ESC auction which will be in March 1980 You May have some interest in them.

That is all for Now and I was Very Glad to hear from you

Sincerely

Roger

Dear Rodger,

I hope you can see what you need on this. At least one can say that the undertype is a large cent. Maybe you can show it to be a 1796 - Maybe Not. Will be looking forward to seeing a note in P.W. if you can prove anything. Even if "Walter Wonderful" claims Priority "if he could just find his old notes"!

I have, this year lost one shipment of coins sent to me and a large box of coins sent out to a Dealer - insured! and lost a box of Supplies. — After 6 mo nothing heard from the Post office despite probing - Please use Registered Mail Said to be more secure -!

You are free to swab - clean, with in reason, use [illegible] ments, photo, press, milky benzol W. the paper ETC - (I sometime benzol with carbon paper to bring up hidden markings) IT is obvious the coin, [only 1795 or 96] does not have a normal, natural toned Surface - Use your judgement and do what you would let a trusted friend data your coins - I know you need as much information as you can get. - Keep as long as you need to (over)

Mail either Before or after the 8 mar, Rush.

Sorry you put all your Dups in the auction -
I would like to have some Ex Cohen Coins -

Howard.

Glad to send the coins to you -
Just having your comments is more than enough for postage + Registration. Who would think my $1.90
Auction would turn out to be so interesting —

Since EAC - The coins I've gotten are nice but the people I've collected are even nicer.

Ho
